Because of the changes made in the registration requirements by the Indiana legislature of 1915 many inquiries are being made by voters as to what is necessary for them to do so they will be qualified to cast their ballot in the November election. Prior to 1915 voters were required to register before an election but that legislature provided for a permanent registration on file with the county auditor.

Under the last act but one registration is held each year, twentynine days before the general election. The election this year falls on November 7 which means that the registration boards will be in session on Monday, October 9. The personnel of the boards in session in each precinct in the county is the same as under the former law. It is composed of an inspector and two registration clerks. The commissioners appoint the inspectors at the August meeting. If any inspector does not qualify within ten days afappointed his successor may be named by the county auditor. The county chairmen of the two political parties casting the highest number of votes at the preceding general election are entitled to appoint the registration clerks. The nominations are placed in the hands of the Exhibits Show That Various De- Prisoners Admitted They Were Bound Together to Fight Carranza and U.S. Bandits.

By United Press.

Pershing's Field Headquarters near Namiquipa, Mex., (By Wireless to Columbus, N. M.) May 19-Sixteen Villa bandits were killed and a number captured when a band of twenty-five cowboys from the Hearst ranch surprised the bandits, forty miles south of Madera.

The bandits were under the command of Alexandro Dominguez and Pedro Costillo. This band had been raiding Hearst's ranch stealing cattle and the cowboys were sent out to disperse them. For three days they followed them and overtook the raiders at Rancho Divje. The bandits were surprised and were virtually wiped out. Among the prisoners were Costillo.

The captives were taken to Madera and turned over to the Carranza garrison there. While the bandits claimed they were not Villa followers they admitted they were bound together to fight both Carranza and American forces.

OLD PAPERS

Found by Mrs. Thomas Foy, of Redding Township, in a Chair.

Mrs. Thomas Foy, who lives in Redding township, recently found some old Seymour papers under a cushion of a chair. The papers had been used as packing. Among the collection are copies of the Seymour PEACE NEGOTIATIONS MIGHT Weekly Star, published on Christmas Day, 1874. Stairs and Patterson were the editors. There is a part of the sheet of the Cincinnati Gazette issued in September the same year and a copy of the Sunday School Advocate published December 26, 1874. The papers are yellow with age but are well preserved. The Seymour papers contain the names of several parties still living here. Comparison with the present issue of the Seymour Republican shows the great advancement that has been made in the local newspaper field during the last forty years.

been shown in the United States. The exhibit shows that the various departments of the government are doing to conserve health throughout the United States as well as its efforts to save life by means of the various life saving devices.

The recent issue of the B. & O. Magazine gave an explanation of the train which is reprinted in part:

The departments of the Treasury, War, Navy, Interior, Agriculture, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the American Red Cross Society, all had cars esepcially devoted to the display of the various devices and plans which are used under the direction of these departments for the conservation of human and material resources.

Of special interest was a modern full size self-bailing surf boat with complete life-saving apparatus, as used by the coast guard service, and which was housed in a baggage car, the end of which had been taken out so as to permit of the installation of this large boat and its fixtures.

The department of the navy is represented by models of old and new guns, such as have been and are being used on our fighting ships, and on account of the large importance it has assumed in the Great War, a full size torpedo will attract a good deal of attention.

In the exhibit of the department of the interior, the bureau of mines will show the life saving devices used in conserving the lives of more than a million miners engaged in this hazardous occupation in the United States.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, which, as is well known to our readers, has general supervising charge of all safety appliances used on the railroads, has a complete exhibit of these, most of which are familiar to railroad men, but which will be of particular importance to the hundreds of thousands of nonrailroaders who have the opportunity to inspect the train and its con-

THIS STATE WOULD PROFIT FROM FEDERAL ROAD BILL

Indiana Would Get $140,600 from Government First Year-What State Must Do.

Washington, May 20.-Figures compiled by the federal good roads bureau show that Indiana would receive in the year starting July 1 the sum of approximately $140,600 as aid from the government in the construction of rural post roads, if the provisions of the senate good roads bill are adopted. Since Congressman Shackleford, of Missouri, author of the house bill, has signified his willingness to agree to most of the provisions of the senate bill, there now seems no reason to doubt that federal aid for building roads soon will have become a fact.

Under the terms of the senate bill, which provides $5,000,000 for the first year, $10,000,000 for the second year and on up to $25,000,-000 for the fifth year, Indiana would receive a total in five years of $2,-109,000. The resolution would instruct the postmaster-general to have a stamp of the ordinary size prepared which would bear a reproduction of the old statehouse at Corydon and the old elm tree under which the Indiana Constitution was written.

The resolution carries a long preamble, which recites the general details of the Indiana centennial celebration and tells of the extraordinary efforts being made in Indiana to make the celebration one of historic importance. It sets out that the state has appropriated $250,000

Representative Cox tried some time ago to have the postmaster-general issue such a stamp as is now proposed, but the request was refused. The postmaster-general at that time took the position that an act of the congress would be necessary to authorize him to prepare the stamp.

The matter was dropped for some time, but has been taken up again by Representative Cox at the request, it is understood, of the D. A. R. and other patriotic bodies which are interested in the centennial celebration. Efforts will be made by the Indiana congressman to push the resolution through the congress as early as possible in order that the stamp may be prepared in time to be of some value in advertising the celebration.

You young men and women who are just graduating from public school, let your next step be a business college education. It will be the wisest move you've ever made. A commercial training is essential to succeed in commercial life. Be business trained before you enter business.

It will pay prospective business college students to attend this school. Our graduates are in demand—opportunity lies in their wake, good positions are always open to them, due to our systematic and thorough methods of teaching which has put this institution in high standing with business men of this and other large cities of the country.

Students now graduating should investigate our plans. Complete courses in stenography, typewriting, bookkeeping, accounting and business law. Summer term commences June 5. Write, call or phone for rates and further particulars.

Miss Kitching Decides to Accept Uncle's "Tainted Money."

Exercising woman's prerogative of changing her mind, Miss Edith Kitching, who has been living in New York on $3 a week, has notified the surrogate's court that she accepts the $200,-000 fortune of her deceased uncle, Francis F. Ripley. On moral grounds she had previously refused to accept even the $40,000 he specifically left her.

"I have not studied philosophy for twenty-five years not to be able to weigh the right and wrong of my first impulse," said Miss Kitching. "I have reasoned it out. When tainted money is passed on to another person that person can use it in a way to remove the taint so far as she is concerned."

The court ignored certain charitable intentions of Ripley's because he had not taken the required legal steps to divide his wealth and informed Miss Kitching she was the sole heir. Miss Kitching says she will use the money in doing good. Ripley amassed it principally through mortgages and other operations to which Miss Kitching ob-

Free Gas Connection Service

Extended For Another Weeki

If you are one of those who neglected buying your gas range last week, here is good news for you. Owing to the unprecedented rush of last week, we were unable to properly care for all who came in. There may have been some who did not get to come at all. For all such, we give you another chance this week.

Our offer of free gas connection from the main to your kitchen goes with every range sold this week.

Last week's demand completely riddled our stock, but new shipments are due today. Come in and let us have the pleasure of showing them.

Plan to attend the demonstration of gas range cooking by Miss Florence Peet, at the Republican's series of cooking school lessons at Society Hall next week.

Do Your Painting While Paint is Still Cheap.

The paint market is very firm at present prices and if there is any change it is likely to be upward. Delay may prove expensive. If your property needs painting you should have it done at once. You can't make a mistake if you paint with LUCAS PAINT.

It has stood every test. The home of Mr. Vogel which appears above was painted last year with LUCAS PAINT.

Mr. Vogel is a staunch friend of LUCAS PAINT. All his town and farm property has been kept painted with LUCAS PAINT for the past fifteen years and every job has been satisfactory.

THE CRIPPLE OF LYSTRA-Acts 14:8-20

GOLDEN TEXT :- He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength.

Paul's first evangelistic missionary tour to Jews and gentiles, and is spoken of in verse 26 as "the work which they fulfilled." Being driven from Antioch, they came to Iconium; persecuted there they fled to Lystra; their persecutors followed them, and at Lystra Paul was stoned to death, but the Lord revived him, and then they went on to Derbe, everywhere preaching the gospel, telling the glad tidings and sufferelese worth doing, for this he counted to finish the work to which He has ing for it, but winning souls and thus all else as dross and determined to called us, filling us with His Spirit, adding to the Lord the members of His know nothing but Jesus Christ crucibody. From Derbe they returned fied, risen, ascended and returning. through all the places where they had been, and from Attalia sailed to An- tra, who had been born lame, reminds tioch, in Syria, from whence they had us of the healing through Peter in set forth, and there rehearsed to the chapter iii of another man who had brethren all that God had done with been born lame. We also think of the them, opening the door of faith to the

After preaching the gospel in every place, when they returned they confirmed the souls of the disciples, encouraging them to continue in the faith, ordaining elders, praying with them and commending them to the Lord on whom they believed. One thing they insisted on was that the believers must not count suffering a strange thing, for only by the way of tribulation can we enter the kingdom (verses 21-23). When we receive the Lord Jesus we become children of God and heirs of the kingdom, but then the conflict with the world, the flesh, and the devil begins and will continue while we stay on earth. Even our Lord said, "In the wait for His Son from heaven (I Thess. world ye shall have tribulation." But 1, 9, 10). He also said, "Let not your heart be troubled," "See that ye be not troubled" (John xvi, 33; xiv, 1, 27; Matt. xxiv, 6).

At Iconium they spake so boldly in the Lord, and the Lord was so manifestly with them, working signs and wonders by their hands, that a great multitude. both of Jews and Greeks, believed, and they abode long time there preaching the Lord Jesus (verses 1-6).

Persecution sent them on to Lystra, and there they preached the gospel. In Paul's estimation there was nothing God. May the grace of God enable us so forth and so on.

When the people saw the miracle wrought through Paul and Barnabas they were ready to worship them and could scarcely be restrained, even after Paul assured them that they were only men of like passions with themselves and that the healing of this man was by the power of the living God, who was thus seeking to draw them to Himself and away from all the lying vanities of their idolatry. Note now the Thessalonians turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God and to

CHAPTER VII.

The Bestest Christmas.

Christmas at the Thomas farm was always Charlie's day. This year he was a year older and a year wiser. Somewhere in the course of twelve months Charlie had discovered, consciously, the thing that can make every one of three hundred and sixty-five days a Christmas. Perhaps it had been between the covers of his beloved "Story of Sir Galahad" on that first day Mary Alice had read it to him.

Christmas at the farm had meant a little love feast, with three to partake. Now it meant something morethe open door of hospitality, the sharing of one's blessings. Charlie, with Martha's help, sent out his invitations.

Will you please come to our party on Christmas night? We are going to have a tree and a turkey. It weighs seventeen pounds. Commences at six o'clock. Very respectfully yours, CHARLES B. THOMAS.

Sam and Martha had some misgiv ings about the Willetts.

"I wouldn't know what to do to entertain them swells," said Martha. 'Still, if Charlie wants 'em, I'll do my best. Mr. Willett's fine; I wouldn't mind him so much. But Mrs. Willett's different. She'd embarrass me to

"Oh, I don't know," said Sam, trying to be encouraging. "We're's good's them; Willett was poorer'n I am once."

Yet it was with distinct relief that the Thomases read Mrs. Willett's gracious and cordial answer to Charlie's invitation. They were to spend Christmas with Mrs. Willett's people. If you feelin'?" Francis were to be at home, it would be different; he would have been dehe was able to rejoice in it and glorify lighted. She regretted very much, and been all afternoon?"

> "Thank goodness," said Martha. "Then it'll be just us and the Browns." You couldn't buy anythin'." Sam gave Charlie five dollars to shop with, and the little boy, very deprecating and apologetic, declined to take anyone but Mary Alice into his confidence regarding his purchases.

And so the great night finally came. As modern Christmases go, the weather and the amount of snow were quite up to specifications. The fine, clean snow lay in gentle, billowing drifts, big moon, and the air bit and tingled. Oh, it was some Christmas!

In the sitting-room the table was all set. The bright coals in the heater glowed through the squares of mica, and on its top apples in a pan sputtered and sizzled, filling the room with a sugary odor.

"Don't light the lamp just yet, mummee," said Charlie. "I can't see out show." the window if you do."

So he sat looking down the snowy road, all patched and shadow barred in the slant moonlight. To Martha it seemed as if her boy, there in the pale | Mrs. Brown and Mary Alice and pick glow from the window, were surround- up his son from the soap box. ed and glorified by the soft aura from his golden head. She went into the kitchen and basted the turkey, which crackled and popped in its own savori-

Came the far, thin clanging of a gong. The Sheffield trolley, approaching the end of the line, slid into view with shining rectangles of light, rocking and dipping. Then it stopped, and Charlie knew that passengers were stepping down into the snow. In five and Baby Dick would cover the distance to the house. Mary Alice would be hauling her brother tucked up warmly in a soap box on a fifty-cent sled. Out in the kitchen rose the Boss' voice, loud and hearty:

"Hullo, there, Lem, old scout! All dolled up! Say, you've got a nosebleed, ain't ye? Gosh, no! It's that of surrounding vegetables. red necktie. You sure scare't me. How long ye be'n home? I didn't see ye drive into the yard. Bring a paper? Shucks, I forgot. 'Course they ain't no evenin' papers on a holiday. Set down. Well, go 'long in 'f you'd rather. He's watchin' out down the Chicago, Terre Haute and Southeas road for the folks."

Lem had been to town that afternoon, alone. Sam had let him take the horse and sleigh. So far in the matter of trusting his hired man he had not heretofore gone. It was, to Sam's way of thinking, the supreme test. If Lem could, on this day of all others, run the gantlet of bright and beckoning windows, dodging the sinister hospitality that, despite the gentler influences, can turn Christmas into a milestone of bitterness and regret, and return to the farm clear-

Christmases. He had made a man out of little more than the dust of the road. He wondered, in all intended reverence, if the Creator didn't feel something of the same warm exultation when he saw clean-limbed young Adam rise and salute his Maker. There might be presents and presents, bicycles and bullion, but Sam's gift was greater than all; he had given back to manhood a foundered soul.

"Hullo, Charlie-boy," said Lem. He pulled a chair close and sat down by the little boy in the dusk. "How're

"Great," said Charlie. "F'r goodness' sakes, Lem, wherever have you "Sheffield."

"What for? The stores aren't open.

"That's all right; I had a putty good time, all the same."

"Tell me, Lem." "Give a guess."

Charlie thought hard; then he laughed triumphantly.

"Aw, gosh, Lem! I know! A pitcher show.' "Kee-rect!" cried Lem. "It was a bird, too. Seen a reg'lar rip-snorter, sparkling in the rays of a whacking five reels. Name of it was "The Panther's Eye.' It was a bird!" "Oh, Lem, I wisht I could see a pitcher show. Ne' mind. I will pretty soon. I had a dream last night; it was another one about me bein' well. It's comin' true, too. God's got some kinder plan. I don't know what it is, but I bet it's goin' to work. Say, Lem, tell me 'bout that tiger-eye pitcher

"Ain't got time," said Lem, hurrledly rising. "Look who's comin'." Lem tramped out and Charlie saw him, bareheaded and coatless, meet

"Lem's changed a terrible lot," thought Charlie. "I wonder what was the matter with him when he first Even with such an unusually delightful host as Charlie, the Thomases' Christmas dinner was not essentially unlike other contemporary affairs of the same kind. Everybody ate too much, and talked and laughed and joked and ate some more. Little Dick finished his bottle and was brought out minutes Mary Alice and Mrs. Brown to sit in a borrowed high chair and test some new dental equipment on a colossal drumstick.

And then three things happened that suddenly lifted this Christmas out of the category of common or garden which had been wrenched from the top distinct, just as its own turkey jutted | night Charles B. Thomas.' Rip 'er mountainously up out of the foothills
